1. Presentation and Public Comment regarding 1915 (i) Implementation for Adult Day Health Care (ADHC)

The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) final rule dated March 17, 2014, published new regulations in regards to Home and Community-Based Services (HCBS) specifically, who is authorized to provide case management and service plan development. Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) 42 441.725 states “providers of HCBS for the individual, or those who have an interest or are employed by a provider or HCBS for the individual must not provide case management or develop the person centered service plan”. Currently, case management activities and service plan development are the responsibility of the ADHC provider. In order to comply with these regulations, the State must take on the responsibility of case management and work with the ADHC providers in service plan development.
